THE DONATIONS ROLLED IN

Free Prom Dresses

If you could go to the prom all four years of high school, could you afford it? Lily Anderson did that and never brought a dress thanks to an organization called Tammy's Closet. Tammy's Closet collected and gave away prom dresses to those who needed them, so when the woman running it moved to Florida, that service was no longer available.

Enter Violet Anderson, Lily's younger sister, a junior at AIHS. Violet decided that the concept of Tammy's Closet should be revived. She talked to Carrol Bartlett and to AIHS Principal Erin Brown. Both thought this was a great idea, so AIHS became the new Tammy's Closet. Violet Anderson is proud of how many dresses she's collected

Anderson started collecting the gowns in January through an article in the Newburyport News, flyers, and social media posts. People came from all over to donate not just dresses, but shoes, jewelry, and even a few tuxes. All together, 125 dresses were collected. Several of her friends pitched in to help, including Imogene Desell, Tylar Cacallori, and Tamia Artis. A storage room and a dressing room were set up at Innovation.

For the last two Wednesdays from 4-6 PM, Violet's Closet was open. Violet would give a dress to anyone who needs it, from anywhere. The customers don't even have to be attending a prom.

If the young lady needs a dress for a wedding or any other formal event, they are welcome to come and get one, along with any jewelry and shoes they like.

If you find you need a dress, you can still get one. See Mrs. Bartlett in the Superintendent's area or call AIHS. Any leftover prom items will be saved for next year.

ARTISTS AT THEIR FINEST

Art Winners

Last week, the lobby was filled with artwork of all types, and people had a chance to vote on what they liked best. Most of the voting was done during the Evening of the Arts last Wednesday, and the winners of the People's Choice Awards from quarter 3 were announced this week.

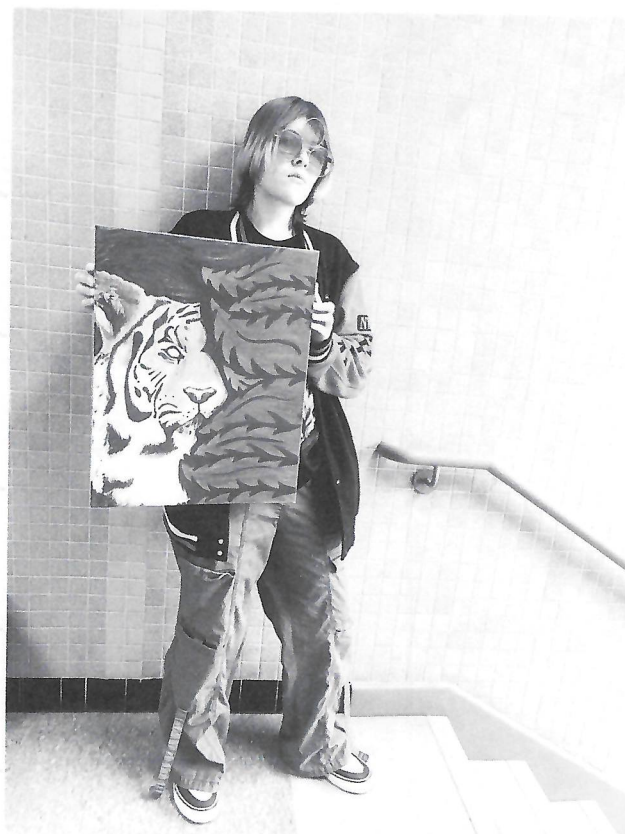

Here they are: 1st place Soleil Bennett with her large acrylic painting, 2nd place Cole Gibson with his acrylic painting, "Tiger", and 3rd place Lia Pena with her 3D-animated character.

MARY BLANKENAU

Senior Profile

By Alice Moulton

Mary would say the most unique thing about herself is that she is hardworking and always advocates for herself; she always asks questions when she has them. This trait may have Mary with her greatest accomplishment, which was conquering math!

In school, Mary's favorite teacher is Mr. Osgood, and her favorite teacher was computer modeling. If Mary could have changed anything about her high school career, she would have wanted to get involved in clubs and activities. Overall, the parts of high school Mary enjoyed the most were the rallies, her friends, and Mr. AHS.

Outside of school, Mary enjoys plaing piano, taking photos, traveling, and reading. If Mary were to have three of her wishes granted, to never combare yourself to others. Solid advice!

On the flip side, Mary would say one of her pet peeves is people who tap their feet constantly. Tap tap tap...If Mary had a superpower, she would want teleportation in order to get places quicker. Whoosh!

When Mary was a kid, she wanted to work with animals, specifically dogs. Now he plans on taking the summer off and going to college to study ASL. In ten years, Mary hopes to have a career relating to ASL. Her final advice is to enjoy the last years of high school because it goes by fast. It certainly does!

We hope Mary achieves all her goals, and that the rest of her time at AHS is fun!

she would want to travel to Hawaii, to get free chocolate croissants whenever she wants, and to go to Boothbay Harbor for a month. The best advice Mary has ever recieved is hearted and supportive. Outside of school, her favorite hobbies are taking care of her guinea pigs and dabbling around her room with her guinea pigs or listening to P!NK. Hailey’s three wishes are as follows: she Hailey Gillis, known to friends as Hailey Gillis, would say that her greatest accomplishment is being a big sister to a sassy fourteen-year-old. The most interesting thing about her, she says, is that she used to live in Lynn, MA. Hailey has spent the last four years loving her four guinea pigs, being kind, and accidentally swearing in front of teachers. Oops! Mr. Glaubitz, who is now retired, has earned the title as her favorite teacher because he always takes extra time to help his students! He is wants infinite guinea pigs, a barn for them to sleep in, and a farm! If she could meet anyone dead or alive, she would meet Jane Goodall because she taught monkeys sign language. Cool beans! When it comes to advice, Hailey keeps it real. To her eight-year-old self, she would say “You got this!” Her message to seniors is the important golden rule—treat people the way you want to be treated.

well missed. Hailey notices the people who care and she gives the same energy right back! Her favorite class is Marine Bio because of the cool dissections! Hailey’s favorite year of high school was her junior year, and her favorite school memory is walking into school on her first day as a senior—finally! A student at school she appreciates, to name one, is Kylie Desmond for being kind-in the craft of legos. Hailey wears her title “Guinea Pig Mom” pridefully and even volunteers at the Guinea Pig Sanctuary every weekend in Salisbury. After high school, she plans to attend North Shore Community College for their Animal Care Specialist Program and eventually open a doggy daycare! Her current favorite song is Die With a Smile by Bruno Mars & Lady Gaga. In her free time, you can also find her dancing definely messages to live by! In ten years, we hope to see Hailey following her dreams and living life exactly how she wants—anxiety-free and surrounded by guinea pigs. Hailey Gillis is the kind of person who reminds us to love fiercely (especially if it’s for a guinea pig). AHS won’t be the same without her next year!

Lacrosse

Defense has not been the name of the game for the Boys Lacrosse team at the start of the season. Despite scoring 31 goals in the first four games, the team is 0-4. The team lost to Ipswich 17-5 on April 2, to Lynnfield 19-8 on April 4th, to Essex Tech 14-8 on April 7, and to Tewksbury 16-10 this past Wednesday.

The team hopes to get on the winning streak next Tuesday at home against Hamilton-Wenham at 4PM.

BUDGETING

Credit for Life

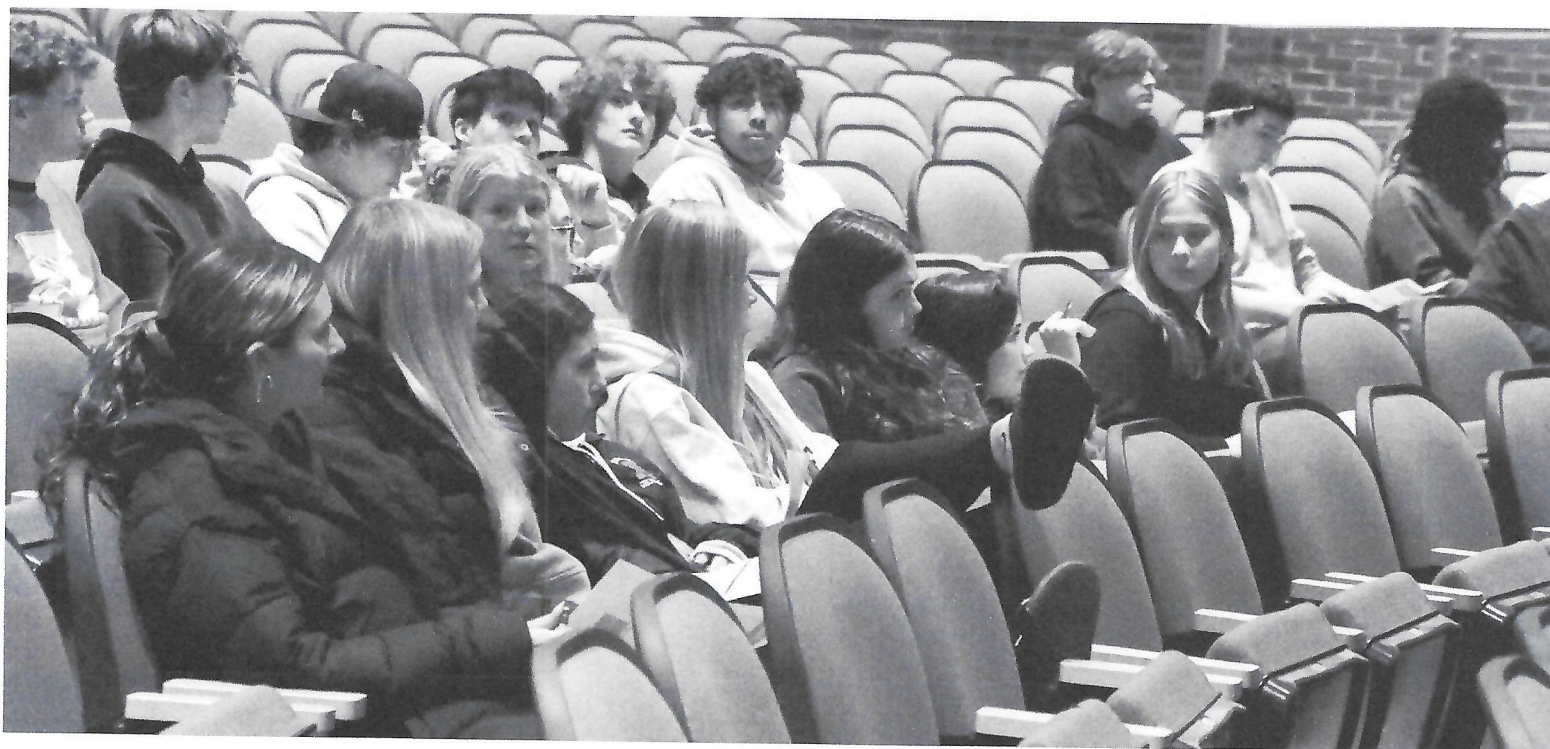

Could you live the life you want on a budget? Juniors found out Wednesday when Align Credit Union brought back the Credit for Life Activity in the gym and auditorium. Half the class went to the gym and received a sheet with a career and monthly salary. Taxes, social security, Medicare, and student loans were deducted to get their net monthly salary. The other half of the class played "The Price Is Right" in the auditorium.

Students then shopped for housing, utilities, transportation, groceries, clothing, internet, cable, cell phones, entertainment, subscriptions, and pets. Each student then gave their sheets to an Align Credit Counselor, who added up their purchases and told them if they made budget and what to do if they didn't.

Halfway through the double WIN block, the students in the gym and auditorium switched. This is definitely one of the most useful advisory activities and we hope it continues in the future.

Thank you to everyone who submitted work. We will be publishing many of your pieces in this spring's edition of Tapestry.

ASK PETUNIA-JONES!

Starting a band!

Dear Petunia Jones,

I can feel music in my heart, yet I have no way to express myself since I have never seen or played an instrument in my life! what shall I do? please advise me Petunia.

-Brian Jones

Dear Brian!

I understand your dilemma, I too have never seen or touched an instrument in my life and yet I long for music. However, unlike you, I have turned my passion into success! This is not a criticism Brian, but it is important to acknowledge the success of others, though I don't expect you to understand. Fret not Brian, despite my strong reservations, I will guide you to reach your full (limited as it may be) potential.

If you wish to become a smashing success in the music industry, like me, you must first form a band. Considering your abilities, almost anyone will do as bandmates. I suggest searching under bridges and boardwalks. Look for people with cans (soup, beans, or otherwise) as these can be used as percussive instruments. If someone seems unwilling to join your band, simply take their cans and they will likely follow you. Once you have established your band, (consisting of at least 10 members, the more the merrier), you will need to collect instruments. Although you may not play any instruments, some of your new friends may (or can quickly learn). Firstly, you will need drums. If you do not have access to actual drums, you can form your own by glueing the cans together and finding two sticks and a rock (this will sound as good if not better than most professional drum sets, trust me Brian.). You will then need to obtain a keyboard. Once again, this can be easily mimicked. Assign seven of your members separate notes and choose an eighth member to point at the singers to cue their note, no one will be able to distinguish this from an actual keyboard. Most importantly, you will need a guitar (A guitar is mandatory. If you do not have a guitar, go home and extinguish your futile hopes of a musical career, Brian). After you have obtained your other instruments, you may want to aquire a bass (this is entirely optional and can easily be mimicked by assigning one member to mumble whatever notes they feel like quietly under their breath). You may also want to capture some birds; seagulls enjoy music so they will be compliant; and force them to sing to add variety to your music. Despite your many setbacks, if you follow my tips, you may become successful! Goodbye Brian.
